

AMERICAN TIN PLATE.

An Immense Factory to be Started
Soon in San Francisco.

AMERICAN TIN IS NOT A MYTH

Introduced for Campaign Purposes.
A Capitalist's Visit to Wales and What he Ascertained—One Result of the McKinley Bill—Governor
Campbell Gets a Present from Demmler, Pa.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—American tin plate is not a campaign myth. Major McKinley may look to this city for a substantial argument on the tariff and Governor Campbell need not dispute him, for there is no doubt of the facts. One of the most prominent and wealthy manufacturers of this city is soon to engage in the manufacture of tinplate on a large scale. For the present he wishes his name withheld from the public, because, he says, he is soon to purchase a site for the factory and does not wish to be besieged by real estate agents or to have the price of property which he desires to secure increased.

The gentleman alluded to said that four weeks ago he returned from Wales, where he found the tin making industry stagnant on account of the McKinley act.

EMPTY FURNACES AT SWANSEA.

"In Swansea, the chief tin-making city of the world," he said, "there were about sixty factories turning out tin plate when the new tariff act was passed. These factories now stand with motionless wheels and empty furnaces, with the exception of a few that are turning out orders for the local trade."

"I went to Wales with a view to obtain information on the subject of tin manufacture, for I saw a promising field for it in San Francisco. I managed to gain a knowledge of the latest improvements in the art, and purchased some of the new machines invented by T. S. Edwards, which can be operated by a laborer, and by the use of which there is a great saving of time and material. The patentee will send mechanics to this city to put up these machines, and give instructions to the hands employed in the factory. In Wales the tin-maker earns $15 per week and works about eight hours per day, and as our workmen are more intelligent they should earn from $20 to $25 per week. We intend to employ about 200 hands as soon as our building is erected, and hope to have from $30 to $40 at work before the end of the first year."

"Where will you obtain your material?"

THE SUPPLY OF TIN.

"From Australia, San Bernardino or the Black Hills. Most of the tin used in Wales now comes from Australia. It will cost much less to bring it here, and in spite of the tariff we can manufacture to advantage, for we save the cost of transportation over the continent, the cost of boxing our product in air-tight cases to prevent it from rusting, and the insurance. Then the manufactured tin from abroad often comes in bad condition, for which the Government makes no allowance, and is taxed at the rate of $2.50 per box. All this is our favor."

"Remember that tin forms not a small part of what is known as tin plate, that is sheet-iron, or steel casted with tin, and if we are compelled to import ore from Australia and pay the duty upon it we will still be able to realize a good profit. I believe, however, that we will be able to obtain all the ore we want within the United States and will thus be able to reap the benefit of the duty imposed on imported tin by the McKinley act."

"Our market is right here. Fully 1,000,000 boxes of tin are annually consumed in California and our tin would be preferred because it would be bright and could be made to suit the wants of our purchasers."

TIN PLATE IS A GO.

The Son of the Largest Welsh Manufacturer Says McKinley is Right.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 4.—E. G. Edwards, a son of Daniel Edwards, the largest individual tin plate manufacturer in Wales, said at the Lafayette Friday night. In speaking of the effect of the McKinley bill on the old Welsh and the new American tin plate industry, Mr. Edwards candidly admitted that he could not help but see that the American manufacturers are bound to make the industry a go.

"While the tin plate industry in Wales is over a hundred years old," said Mr. Edwards, "it is really only during the past 30 years that it has developed to such large proportions. The cause of this development is, candidly speaking, the American market, and when we are deprived of the American market, I must confess that I don't know what the Welsh manufacturers are going to do. That the American manufacturers are getting in good shape cannot be denied, and I do not think it is a difficult thing that many of the Welsh manufacturers claim for the American manufacturers to be able before long to meet the demands of the American market. There are many old tin plate workers now employed in sheet mills in this country who are simply waiting for a chance to resume their old trade in an American tin plate mill. Then, of course, there are many Welsh workmen who are willing to come over here, as the American manufacturers are offering skilled workmen just double the money they receive in the Welsh factories. The Welsh manufacturer, too, will have to look around him, and perhaps come to America."

"Your American manufacturers," said he, "have every requisite for success. You're mining tin, you are making your own steel plates and iron sheets, and you have lots of cash, and cash will get you all the help you want."

Mr. Edwards is going to Pittsburgh, and some of the Western manufacturers and experts expect to take back to Wales some strong, plain facts regarding the growing importance of the tin plate industry in this country.

THE TIN PLATE PRESENT

Sent Governor Campbell Reaches Him at His Columbus Home.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 4.—Governor Campbell yesterday received by the Baltimore and Ohio express 100 pounds of tinplate from the United States Iron and Tin Manufacturing Company, of Demmler, Pa., the charges being prepaid. The firm took this quiet manner of telling the Governor he does not know what he is talking about in the campaign.

The same firm, on request, furnishes an affidavit to the manager of a firm in this city, who uses largely of this tin, setting forth the fact of the manufacture and quality and the local manager states they have been using the Pennsylvania tin for some time and find it superior to that which is imported.

MCKINLEY AT ATHENS.

He Addresses Nine Thousand People—He Receives a Great Ovation.

ATHENS, O., Oct. 4.—Yesterday morning's sun rose clothed in some of his old time Republican glory, and with him came the sturdy yeomanry of Athens county, and they came from all parts of the county. The principal business streets and many private residences were profusely decorated with bunting, and everywhere could be seen lithographs of McKinley. The streets were filled before 10 o'clock, and the talk indicated that Athens county Republicans were having a boom. Delegations on horseback, in wagons and carriages continued to arrive until about noon, when a parade was given, headed by the drum corps and brass band. The crowd was estimated at from 7,000 to 8,000. Every township in the county was represented, and the question was who had stayed at home.

Major McKinley arrived at 9 o'clock and was met at the depot by a committee and an escort of 50 young Republicans and taken to the Brown House, where from 10 to 11:30 he held a general reception, and the people were not slow in showing him they respected the man as well as the principles he advocated. Shortly after 12 Major McKinley was escorted by the thousands to the college campus, where for two hours the great crowd stood listening to one of the most masterly and convincing political speeches ever delivered to the people of Athens county. The Major had the closest attention and was frequently interrupted with applause of a hearty character.

After he had finished, Colonel Harris, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, made a short speech.

BURIAL OF BOULANGER.

His Remains Laid Away at Brussels With- out Ceremony—An Immense Crowd At- tended.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 4.—The funeral of General Boulanger took place yesterday. An immense crowd of people assembled hours before the time fixed for the interment ceremonies in front of the residence of the dead soldier in the Rue Montoyer.

A large crowd was expected, and the local authorities had taken precautions in providing an imposing police force for this emergency, but as the hour for starting the procession drew near it was seen that the number of policemen present was far from sufficient for the purpose of maintaining order. Reinforcements were sent for, but, though the extra force soon arrived, the police, as the coffin was brought out of the hotel, proved entirely unequal to keep crushing, excited throngs in anything like decent order. Consequently the sergeants de ville had to call upon the gentlemen mounted to assist them in controlling the mobs. The gentlemen did so, and were compelled to make a number of arrests before order could be restored.

The coffin of the general was covered with hundreds of floral wreaths, tied with tri-colored ribbons, mostly sent from France by his political admirers, and in addition there were a number of tri-colored flags festooned about and draped around the casket. Vast crowds of persons congregated along the route traversed by the cortege of General Boulanger. A decorous silence was observed by the throngs as the hearse passed on its way to the last resting place, and most of the persons in the crowd uncovered their heads. At the entrance to the cemetery the advance of the funeral procession was delayed by the actions of a mob which had gathered at that place, and were roughly crowding about the gates seeking admittance to the graveyard to witness the last act.

The gentlemen who were detailed for duty after considerable exertion succeeded in clearing a passage and the grave was at length reached.

The coffin was then taken from the hearse and lowered into the grave. There were no religious services whatever and no speeches were made. The only ceremony, if ceremony it may be called, was performed by M. Deroulade, who, taking up a tri-color, put the flag to his lips and placed it on the coffin, at the same time exclaiming: "Farewell, my friend." This was the only incident worthy of note in connection with the interment. When the earth had been thrown on the coffin and the soil above the grave arranged by cemetery employees the friends of the dead general returned to their homes.

An Old Adage.

There is an old adage: "What everybody says must be true." Henry Cook, of New Knoxville, Ohio, in a recent letter says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has taken well here. Everybody likes it on account of the immediate relief it gives." There is nothing like it to loosen and relieve a severe cold. For sale by C. R. Goetze, W. W. Irwin, Jno. Klari, G. Schaefer, C. Winding up makes a clock go, but it has an opposite effect upon an insolvent concern.—Lynch Courier.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrah and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrah symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in grand opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Bass of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

TORTURED TO DEATH.

Another Horror in Russia—Revenge of the Nihilists

Boston, Oct. 4.—Berlin Sintzki, a Russian Hebrew, who arrived with his family on the steamship Kansas yesterday, tells a frightful story of the brutality of Russian officials. He and his family were condemned to exile for a trivial offense and set out for the mines under a guard of nineteen soldiers. The officer in charge became enamored with Sintzki's sixteen-year-old daughter, and offered to release the family if the girl were yielded up to him. When his advances were repulsed he tortured her so she died the next day. When the mother lamented she was whipped by order of the officer.

Several days later a hay cart passed the party in which a number of Nihilists were concealed. A barrel of drugged liquor was dropped in the path of the soldiers, and when they became stupid with the liquor the Nihilists swooped down upon them and freed the prisoners. The brutal officer was hung by the heels until dead. By the assistance of the Nihilists the family succeeded in reaching this city.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use, and after taking ten bottles found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was.
